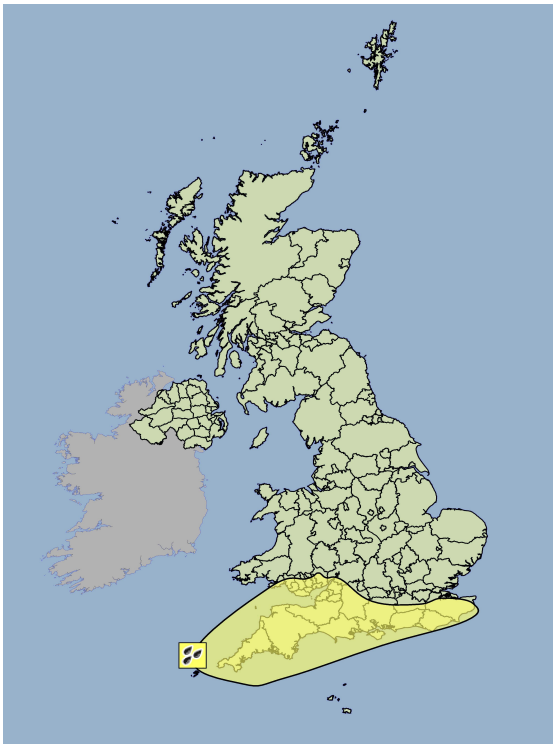
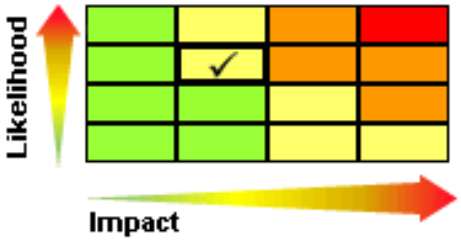
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Another spell of wet and windy weather will affect the British Isles on Sunday as a new, large, deep depression develops over the Atlantic Ocean. The associated frontal system is then expected to move northeastwards across Britain, clearing the far east and southeast Monday morning.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 09:00 on Sun, 05th Jan 2014 until 23:59 on Sun, 05th Jan 2014

Outbreaks of rain, heavy at times, will move northeast across the UK on Sunday accompanied by strong winds. Quite widespread accumulations of 10-15 mm are likely across southern areas with locally in excess of 30 mm possible over some higher ground.

This additional rainfall, following the recent very wet weather, means that the public should be aware of an increased risk of both surface water and river flooding as well as disruption to transport.

This warning has been updated to adjust the area most at risk from disruption.
